49. In adversity the real principles of men appear.
50. Honor yourself, and you will be honored, despise yourself, and you will be despised.
51. An hour's patience will procure a long period of rest.

One Joe Socabasin, an Indian of the Pemobscot tribe not long since, was sued for the sum of five dollars, by a white man, before Squire Johnson. On the day of the trial Joe made his appearance and tendered the requisite amount for debt and costs, at the same time he demanded a receipt in full. "Why Joe it is not usual, it is entirely unnecessary." "O yes, we want 'em receipt sartin." "I tell you Joe, a receipt will do you no good." "Sartin, Squire Johnson, I want 'em." "What do you want it for Joe?" "Oh, squire me die and go to Heaven—then squire me say—'Well Joe Socabasin, you owe any man now?' Then me say 'No' Very, well did you payum." "Ben Johnson?" "O yes, me payum." "Well then, squire you show 'em receipt?" Then me have to go away off down and run all over hell, to hunt 'em up Squire Johnson."—People's Press.

"Ears to Hear."—A gentleman who was not very celebrated for his wisdom, once told his parish minister, whom he had heard preach the preceding Sunday, that he thought his discourse was too long for his hearers—that he wearied their patience. "And I, sir," said the minister, with perfect good humor, "think that your hearers are too long for my discourse."

Human Life. Pliny has compared a river to human life. I have never read the passage in his works, but I have been a hundred times struck with the analogy, particularly amidst mountain scenery.—The river small and clear in its origin, gushes forth from rocks, falls into deep glens, and wanders and meanders through a wild and picturesque country, nourishing only the uncultivated tree or flower by its dew or spray. In this, its state of infancy and youth, it may be compared to the human mind, in which infancy and strength of imagination are predominant—it is more beautiful than useful. When the different rills or torrents join, and descend into the plain, it becomes slow and stately in its movements; it is applied to move machinery, to irrigate meadows, and to bear upon its bosom the stately barge; in this mature state it is deep, strong, and useful. As it flows on towards the sea, it loses its force and its motion, and at last, as it were, becomes lost and mingled with the mighty abyss of waters.

One might pursue the metaphor still further, and say, that in its origin, its thundering and foam, when it carries down clay from the bank and becomes impure, it resembles the youthful mind, affected by dangerous passions. And the influence of a lake in calming and clearing the turbid water may be compared to the effect of reason in more mature life, when the tranquil, deep, cool, and unimpassioned mind is freed from its fever, its troubles, bubbles, noise, and foam. And, above all, the sources of a river, which may be considered as belonging to the atmosphere, and its termination in the ocean, may be regarded as imaging the divine origin of the human mind, and its being ultimately returned to and lost in the Infinite and Eternal Intelligence from which it originally sprung.—Davy.

The Editor of the Mobile Advertiser apologizes to his readers for not publishing any late news of the Georgia election, by stating that no foot passengers had come in from that State, and he was therefore obliged to wait for the mail.

Many men gain a reputation for wisdom by a sententious and sober gravity; They are like Pat's owl, which he christened "parrot," and offered for sale: "Why," said the purchaser, "he does not talk." "No, to be sure, but he keeps a devil of a thinking."

"Mr. Timms," said a wag, "how do you keep your books?" "Oh by double entry." "Double entry, bow's that?" "Oh easy enough; I make one entry and my arther makes another."

Indian Virtue.—A married woman, of the Shawnee tribe, made this beautiful reply to a man whom she met in the woods, and implored her to love and look on him. "Ourlaman, my husband," said she, "who is always before my eyes, hinders me from seeing you."

A Retort.—Some days ago, a very pretty and respectable female, of about seventeen summers, was walking up Market street, Baltimore, at a quick pace, as a threatening shower was about sending down the promontory drops, when opposite the Baltimore House she was accosted by a gentleman in the following language: "Come under my hat, my pretty little miss, and get out of the rain;" the lady, without lessening her speed, sent back the following retort: "There is one call's head under it now, and that is as many as it will cover." The hailing gentleman was among the missing.—Pat.

Extremely Polite.—A young widow of very polite address, whose husband had lately died, was visited soon after by the minister of the Parish, who enquired as usual about her husband's health, when she replied with a peculiar smile—"He is dead, I thank you."—N. O. Adv.

A LADY CLOTHED IN AMERICAN SILK.—At the Agricultural Exhibition of Merrimack county, Mass., Mrs. Kimball, of Hopkinton, New Hampshire, was present robed in rich and durable silks of her own manufacture. She raised the silkworms, reared, twisted, dyed, and wove the silk, and, for aught that is known to the contrary, made the garments with her own hands.

The sketch book of Character

Or Curious and Authentic Narratives and Anecdotes respecting Extraordinary Individuals. In preparing the following work from ample materials, care has been exercised to avoid, in the main, the beaten track of former compilers; to present the reader rather what was inaccessible, than to copy well known biographies and events.

The principal object of the present collection, is to supply a pleasing variety of that kind of incident, which, by exhibiting the marvellous in circumstance, and the extraordinary in character, displays the occasional waywardness of event and its frequent curious operation upon the human mind. It would be easy to prove that, independently of mere entertainment, a knowledge of remarkable facts is necessary to correct the judgment, even upon every-day transactions; and that in the science of life, as well as in every other, it is necessary to become acquainted with the exception to the general rule.—To estimate properly what is, we must possess some knowledge of what may be; and the information is only to be acquired by an attention to the memorable and peculiar, which have been.

The publication was commenced in July. It will be issued in semi-monthly numbers, containing 80 pages each, and will be completed in five months, or sooner, at the option of the Publisher, and will contain, in all, over 400 pages. The numbers will be sent by mail to any part of the Union, carefully packed.

Terms.—One Dollar for the complete work, or six copies for Five Dollars.

Celebrated Trials, and cases of Criminal Jurisprudence,

OF ALL AGES AND COUNTRIES FROM THE EARLIEST RECORD.

Selected by a member of the Philadelphia Bar. Treason—Sedition—Witchcraft—Robbery—Mutiny—Heresy—Libel—Murder—Piracy—Forgery, &c. &c.

These remarkable and deeply interesting Trials have been collected from all the best sources which the public and private Libraries of this country afford. The numbers will embrace many recent cases furnished exclusively by the London Annual Register, and recourse has been had occasionally to manuscripts where printed documents could not be procured.

It is believed that the collection supplies a striking deficiency in the library of the Lawyer, Physician, and general reader.

To members of the Bar the publisher need hardly recommend it, as they must know its worth, but to the general reader, who may be misled as to its character, the publisher assures them that it will be found when completed, a volume of the most intense and exciting interest.

One singular and alarming fact presents itself in the murder cases, and it is that so many should die protesting their innocence. Is it to be believed that upon the verge of eternity they could so loudly proclaim that which they knew to be false, when not a hope of escape is held out to them; the "Circumstantial Evidence" cases, of which there are five; would make us think otherwise. It is a subject that may well make one ponder upon the law which demands life for life.

The publication was commenced in July, and the numbers are issued semi-monthly, each number containing 120 pages each, printed on fine white paper of the size of the Marryatt Novels, and will be completed in October,—making a volume of 600 closely printed octavo pages. The numbers will be sent by mail to any part of the Union, carefully packed. Terms $2 for the complete work, or three copies for five dollars.

It is worthy of remark, that a similar work is published in London at about 79 cents a number, and contains only 75 small duodecimo pages. This edition will cost but 40 cents a number, and contains 120 large octavo pages.

Address L. A. GODEY, 100 Walnut street, Philadelphia.
